DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.
2. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities:
the acronym "KTV on line 3 of page 2 should be introduced by the full text of the acronym with the acronym in brackets.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 2-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

As per Claim 2.

The phrase "forth step" is indefinite in that the steps are not numbered and no order is assumed. Further, the phrase "the two trading centers" lacks antecedent basis.

As per Claim 3.

The word "finishing" may be intended to be "finishes".

As per Claim 4.

The phrases "can comprise", "such as" and "etc" are indefinite.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Art Unit: 3639

4. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Mankes (6,477,503).

As per Claim 1.

Mankes et al ('503) discloses:

executing an ordering process in one of the two trading channels, wherein each trading channel has an allotment of allocable units from which customer orders are filled and inputting the number of allocable units they ordered, see figure 2 (124);

obtaining the ordering information from the trading channel that receives the order from the customer, wherein the ordering information includes the surplus of allocable units of the trading channel and the number of allocable units the customers ordered, see figure 7 (data is replicated...as requests are made);

obtaining the present surplus of the allocable units from the other trading channel;

redistributing the two allotments of allocable units to the two trading channels, that is the two surpluses of the two trading channels are used to recalculate new allotments for each channel according to a specified ratio see figure 7 (data is replicated...as requests are made);

updating the two new allotments from the fourth step in the two trading channels see figure 7 (data is replicated...as requests are made) and column 6, lines 4-32.

As per Claim 2.

Mankes et al ('503) further discloses after the redistributing the two new allotments step, detecting whether another ordering process has been executed step is added to confirm whether the two new allotments are the most current, if the result is no, the obtaining order step is executed again and if the result is yes, the updating the two new allotments step is executed, see figure 7 (data is replicated...as requests are made) and column 6, lines 4-32.

As per Claim 3.

Mankes et al ('503) further discloses after the ordering process in each of the trading channel finishes, a sending trading successful step is executed to let the customer know the ordering process is successful, see figure 2 (134).

As per Claim 4.

Mankes et al ('503) further discloses the allocable units comprise hotel room, tickets for assigned seats, or reservations for restaurants, see column 1, lines 15-29.

Prior Art Made of Record

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

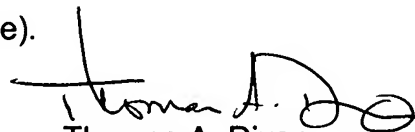

JP 10063883 is the closest foreign art that discloses allots seats for reservation. Gavish et al is the closest NPL that discloses dynamic allocation of tickets between multiple remote computer sites and a host airline computer.
